Little by little the true strength of the movement for tax revision is beginning to dawn on the legislators. FEED THE BIRDS

The birds suffer this weather. There are many of them around the country now. Some have failed to fly away south. There are a few crows of quail in the woods, and some pheasants. They will have a hard time. This is a good job for the boys and girls to help out in the city. Feed the birds. Find out where they are, to what places they come in search of food and water, and help them out with both. The birds are our best friends. We ought not to forget the friends.

Appeal to Stop Milk Deliveries

BULLETIN

Janesville, Ill.—Milk was poured on the roads leading into Waukesha and dairy company plants were picketed today, in the first outbreak of trouble incident to the milk strike in the Chicago district.

The first agitation to stop the flow of milk produced in Rock county going to Chicago was reported Thursday in the Clinton district. An appeal had been made to producers, who are patrons of the Bowman Dairy company, having a station there, to stop deliveries.

In Janesville the situation remained unchanged all day and except for the posting of the pilot at the Bowman plant here, no notice for the next three months has been announced here. Practically all dairymen in Janesville, even the bottlers, expressed an unfeigned desire to see the price remain at $2.75 a hundred for the next three months, rather than be subjected to the local producers. However no dealer in the county will take any action to establish a price until the strike issue is settled.

Meanwhile the strike in the Chicago belt is being felt, the supply (Continued on page 8)

GEORGIAN WANTS ACTION IN CAPITAL LIQUOR SCANDAL

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Washington—Drastic action to put a stop to illegal liquor drinking by members of congress and other high government officials and to prevent similar legislation in the states was demanded yesterday by Representative Upshaw, democrat, Georgia. His demand was embodied in a resolution and a speech prepared in support of it.

Mr. Upshaw said congress should clean around its own door by passing a resolution declaring permanent禁酒令 to the flow of liquor from any member of congress under the influence of liquor in the capital or house office building, or known to have liquor illegally acquired in his office.

He also suggested that all federal appointees, including cabinet officers, army and navy officers and diplomatic and consular representatives abroad "be required to take a pledge of total abstinence." The executive committee, he added, should be used on all government officials known to drink liquor.

In reference to "diplomatic" liquor, Mr. Upshaw said: "The members of diplomatic missions on the part of Italy, Spain, Immortalis, and the attachés of foreign locations and embassies puts into Italy the necessity for revoking the privilege that should never have been allowed under our national prohibition law. Recent investigations have convinced me that some of these attachés would be better off if they were relieved of the expense and all their other troubles and responsibilities from Honor immunity. I am introducing a bill to relieve them of their Baucanian temptations in our prohibition land."

"I got me a new husband, an A-1 edition that pulls a lot of my most spontaneous lines, and quick as he says the I run in the other room and write them down before I forget them. He's a big help to me."

SELL GOODS FROM SCHAUDE HOUSE

Whitewater Home Disposed of.

Furniture Will Follow, Plan

Whitewater—Sale of the household effects of Mrs. Myrtle Schaudé, confessed poisoner of her husband, Edward Schaudé, in March, 1922, will be held at the house at 1204 Main street at 1:30 p. m. Saturday. The home was sold at that time to Elmer Flatt of Whitewater.

Sale of the home and furniture is taken here as an indication that Mrs. Schaudé realizes that she may be punished by prison confinement for her part in the murder of her husband, the main part in which she claimed played by her fiancé, Elmer Flatt, and Bert Krafahl and Mrs. Schaudé will be tried at the January term of the Walworth county circuit court. Since their preliminary hearings, they have been confined in the Walworth county jail.

The four children of Mrs. Schaudé, whom she attempted to poison, are being cared for in Whitewater and are still recovering. Elmer Flatt, the newest son, is weak and ill. Mr. Neff, and Elmer is employed by Mr. Flatt, who purchased the Schaudé home. The two youngest children are with Mrs. Schaudé's relatives.

Star "Unfortunate"

Charles Chapman, who caused Miss Purviance recently in a picture of his affection and who was reported to have decided to use her as feminine lead in his next comedy, announced today that it is possible some one else may take the role, but denied that the publicity arising from the Dimes shooting would influence his choice.

"It was unfortunate for Miss Purviance to be there," he said, "but I certainly wouldn't discharge her for something for which she is not in the least to blame. Such a thing might happen to any one."

The theory advanced by Miss Purviance was that Greer was foolishly jealous enough to shoot any man he might have found in the apartment with Miss Normand that night.

BADLY BURNED AS CLOTHING IS IGNITED

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Walworth—Mrs. Avis Cook, wife of Charles Cook and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Worden, Walworth, is in the Harvard Cottage Inn in serious condition as the result of being badly burned.

Mrs. Cook was the novelist's second husband. They were married in New Haven in November, 1919. Her first husband, Robert Puttaker Putnam, died in 1918.

Judge Burrows was informed that Mrs. Puttaker had a country home at Madison, Conn., and that her name was on the voting list there in 1921 and 1922.

In a magazine article last year Mrs. Sanderson referred to Mr. Sanderson as follows:

"I got me a new husband, an A-1 edition that pulls a lot of my most spontaneous lines, and quick as he says the I run in the other room and write them down before I forget them. He's a big help to me."

LA FOLLETTE RETURNS TO SENATE SEAT

Washington—Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, who has been sick for several weeks, returned today to the senate, he said he was "pretty well" and showed no marked evidence of his illness. Because he has been absent since the new congress convened, Senator LaFollette did not take oath of office until today.

Infatuation Held Cause of Shooting of Club Man by Actress' Chauffeur

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Los Angeles—What drove Mabel Normand's chauffeur to shoot assault and battery at her, the police said, was infatuation with her. The man, Dimes, was said to be recovering. Miss Normand was in the same hospital suffering from a violent breakdown brought on by excessive worry, and Miss Purviance was resting at home after announcing that reports of her engagement to Dimes were not entirely unfounded.

"Mr. Dimes and I were engaged—and yet we were not engaged if you understand what I mean," she told newspaper men last night, explaining that while the Dimes man had "never given me an engagement ring, there was an understanding between us that we would be married."

Horace A. Greer, the chauffeur, also known as Joe Kelly, still insisted that he put a bullet through Dimes' lung in self defense. The police were equally positive that infatuation for Miss Normand, coupled with an ambition to be her hero and protector, led Greer to shoot when balked in his effort to "rescue" the actress from Dimes.

I am most terribly fond of him," she added.

Star "Unfortunate."

Charles Chapman, who caused Miss Purviance recently in a picture of his affection and who was reported to have decided to use her as feminine lead in his next comedy, announced today that it is possible some one else may take the role, but denied that the publicity arising from the Dimes shooting would influence his choice.

ANNUAL HOLSTEIN MEETING, FEB. 13 AT EAU CLAIRE, WIS.

Placing the Wisconsin Holstein on the cattle map of the world has been the 32 year program of the Wisconsin Holstein association since their organization. Now, at the termination of that period, it appears that the result of the effort has been achieved.

In the coming convention of the Wisconsin Holstein associations, at Eau Claire, Feb. 13, this work of 32 years will be reviewed and the Wisconsin-bred Holstein will be honored by speakers who are authorities in their field.

Twenty-eight billboard signs scattered in various parts of the state along principal highways tell the story of the Wisconsin Holstein to the thousands of tourists who visit the state every year. The fame of the breed has been exploited in dozens of cattle and dairy magazines now published in America. The show and sales lines of nearly every state have been examples of the Wisconsin-bred Holstein in its best.

Has the record of Wisconsin's Holstein family been written in agricultural and dairy history, according to officers of the Wisconsin Holstein association?

Sixty-three counties in the state have Holstein units affiliated with the parent organization. Each one of these maintains definite programs of work calculated to advance the interests of the breed at home and abroad.

QUESTIONS READY FOR TEST ACTION

Will Be Submitted to Supreme Court in Emergency Board Case.

(By Associated Press)

Madison.—Your questions will be submitted to the supreme court for settlement, if the state educational institutions request emergency funds voted by Governor Blaine and State Treasurer Levitan and carry the case to the courts to compel Secretary of State Zimmerman to grant the funds it was said to be entitled to.

The questions will be raised for decision tomorrow.

Their program embraces both classical and popular selections. The instrumental numbers include violin and cornet solos and piano-violin-cornet trios.

Each member of the quartet has had exceptional training, all of them having had valuable experience with other high-grade musical organizations.

See Final Test.

The questions will be offered to get a final and conclusive test of the emergency act, it was declared, and to prevent future difficulties regarding emergency funds. The points that will be raised for decision follow:

1.—Is the emergency board act constitutional? It is contended by some that the act is contrary to the constitutional provision prohibiting delegation of legislative power to other than the legislature.

2.—Is a vote of two of the three members of the state emergency board sufficient to vote funds? The act, it is stated, authorizes the voting of funds on certification of the governor, secretary of state and state treasurer. It is contended by some, however, that the constitutional provision depriving state and local governments of the right to tax a state board or commission shall govern, unless otherwise specified, rules with the emergency body.

3.—Does the emergency board have authority to vote funds when the state legislature has failed or refused to make appropriations for the same item?

4.—Does an emergency under terms of the emergency act exist in the present situation regarding state educational institutions?

5.—Does the act provide for action.

It is desired that these questions will obtain expressions from the court on which the emergency board can base future actions. If the emergency board is still unconstitutional, the decision of the remaining questions will be unnecessary, of course. No previous test of the act has been had since its passage eight years ago, according to state officials.

ROCK COUNTY BULL CHOSEN HEAD OF

P. Coon, L. H. North, Dr. G. W. Post and J. A. Craig, Holstein breeders of the county, has been named to head the "All-American" Holstein show herd. This herd represents the best show animals of all breeds in America and is under the care of W. S. Morris, the foreman of the authority; R. E. Jaeger and M. S. Preccato, editor of the Holstein-Friesian World, the breed paper.

Jefferson county has two animals in the "All-American," including Madam Arts Wayne Denys, the outstanding female of the year.

Out-of-state animals selected are from the state of Washington, four from Wisconsin, three from Iowa, two from Pennsylvania and one from Ontario, Canada.

HARNESS HORSES

In the age bull class, the first one considered by the judges, a very close contest developed between Walelowis Ollie Hilliard, first prize and grand champion at Wisconsin and first in his class at Madison, and McKinley Pfeifer, both from Madison. "Ollie" states the report on the "All-American." "The latter bull is a somewhat stronger animal but the son of Iowa Sir Ollie, 1915 national champion, finally received the call on account of his better style along with exceptional balance throughout."

It is understood both Maserp and Preccato were favorable to the "Ollie" bull.

Johanna Ring Apple Pabst was named as the best two year old. This animal is owned by J. E. Plek, Hartford, Wis., and was named by the judges as the Waterford grand champion but finished second in his class under Wm. Stevens at Milwaukee.

Tillanook Daisy Butter King, Dick of the Carnation Stock Farm was named as the best age cow of the year, having won a long list of first prizes and the national champion. However, the "Carnation" had no record of winning the two different judges at the Jefferson county Madam Arts Wayne Denys.

BEST TWO YEAR OLD

In reporting about the female classes the World states, "Probably the outstanding class of the year was with the two year olds. There was no argument regarding the height of Madison's 'Daisy'."

Wm. Denver, 20, of the same class, the yearling yearling class, the judges selected Iuka Cremello Loxton, a half-sister to Artis Wayne Denver Cremello, both being sired by Prince, herd bull at the Jefferson county farm.

Thus far five calves have been born in Rock county sired by the "Ollie" bull, John W. Jones, Milton Junction, who holds an interest in the bull, because of quartering him for several months, has four and L. H. North, one. All the calves are reported to carry excellent breed type.

FIRST DAY'S TAX RECEIPTS $18,000

Last of Notices Are Mailed—Taxes Payable at Four Banks.

More than $18,000 was collected in taxes by City Clerk-Treasurer E. J. Sartell, Wednesday, the opening day of the 1924 tax collection period which extends until Jan. 31 but which may be held open a few weeks after that date. Money continued to come in rapidly Thursday with indications before the $15,000 mark would be reached before night. A total of more than $55,000 in all kinds of taxes is to be collected.

Real estate taxes formed the bulk of Wednesday's receipts, amounting to $12,500.26, according to the clerk-treasurer's report. Personal property tax receipts totaled $2,831.78; income, $2,228.09; and sur-taxes, $671.89.

In a fund drive on tax notices still unmailed, the city manager, chief of police and janitor worked at one table Thursday, filling and sealing envelopes. Employees in other offices also aided in the work so that it is believed all the notices will be mailed out by Thursday night.

Mr. Sartell once more urges people to have their tax notices with them when they come to his office to pay their bills, adding that those desiring to pay at the bank instead of the city hall, are given that opportunity again this year. The banks will keep a record of all tax monies collected and turn it over to the treasurer's office.

$5,000,000 GOAL FOR PARKER PEN IN COMING YEAR

minimum goal for 1924 is $5,000,000 and we hope to exceed that by 20 per cent.

Advertising Campaign.

Kenneth S. Parker, advertising manager, told of the enormous advertising program planned for 1924 and presented statistics showing how every competitor by large percentage in 1923 advertising. He gave figures of 1923 advertising, 1924 advertising, the Parker firm exceeded $120,300 in magazine advertising, as compared to $71,475 for its nearest competitor. A third pen company spent $61,250; a fourth, $61,000; and a fifth, $17,175. Mr. Parker said.

In newspaper lineage used by the major pen companies, the Parker was the first, with 375,674; the next highest firm had 161,301; the third, 83,532; and a fourth, 23,257.

Other Surveys Conducted.

The advertising manager reported on other surveys conducted during the year, one being made in 15 of the leading cities of the country. This survey shows the Parker distribution greatest, being 25 per cent of 312 stores as compared to 23 for its nearest competitor. Parker sales in these stores are recorded as 38.5 per cent of the sales of all pens, the next highest being 25.3 per cent and the remainder being under 5 per cent.

Of pens bought since 1922, another survey in 21 cities showed 27 per cent Parker sales, with 25.8 per cent indicating that their next pen would be a Parker.

Hand Meets Salemen.

The black leather-covered Parker salesmen arrived yesterday night on a special dinner and parlor car from Chicago. At the Northwestern station here they were met by the Parker Pen band and were assigned to rooms in hotels.

Thursday morning was spent in a tour of the plant and in the salemen's hotel room, where they had a luncheon in the plant's cafeteria. The talks by Mr. Parker and Mr. Blackman occupied Thursday afternoon, while Thursday night will be taken up with a banquet at the Colonial club, at which E. C. Parker, production manager, will preside. Mr. A. Crowley and Mr. Blackman will speak at Friday's meeting. The convention comes to a close on Saturday afternoon.

Two Dance Orchestras.

With 600 employees at the Jameson plant, besides the visiting salesmen, plans were completed Wednesday afternoon to have two orchestras play at the dance-meeting party Friday night. In addition to the dance in the armory where Husk O'Hare's 11-piece orchestra will play, Tersteichorean hall has also been engaged and the music there will be furnished by the Peacock Strutters, directed by another O'Hare organization. The two orchestras will alternate between the two halls so all will have a chance to hear both. Only those provided with tickets by the company will be admitted.

METHODISTS HAVE WEEK OF PRAYER

This is a week of celebration of prayer at the Methodist church. The Rev. F. F. Case will speak Thursday night on "Find Me a Man." The Rev. C. S. Sprague, Beloit, will speak Friday night at the church.

A City of Pavements.

The paving program for 1924 presented to the citizens of Janesville through the Gazette Wednesdays evening, is one of the great forward steps in making a better city. The plan is concerned with connecting the streets already paved into a regular system and with the future work also in mind. Other streets in other years will, under the plan of the city management government, be paved and eventually the entire city will have no mud street. Such a condition is of course ideal. Paved streets add to sanitary residential value. They increase property value. They make for easier delivery at homes. They add to beauti-

ty. They make up an asset for progress and better living. In the last few years we have done much in the way of paving, and right now as a result, we have the best streets ever in Janesville. The city is the better for it. We have some beautiful streets. Center avenue is an attractive boulevard. Other streets can be equally appealing to residents and visitors. Those streets which connect with the cement highway plan ought of course to be paved. They are main lines of travel. They are the streets on which thousands of tourists come into the city and depart from it.

There are too many cities like Janesville, when the traveler knows he is within the city because of the bad pavement.

The 1924 paving program is designed to correct that. In the city itself we have no connecting drives. With the new program we will have the one east and west street paved so that there will be a fine drive out Milton and over to Garfield and back on Court street. Later, the whole of Garfield should be paved so as to make a cross town street and open up a fine residence section.

On the west side there are numerous additions to the pavements which will at once appeal to the citizens as being laid out with care and attention to the present as well as to the future needs.

This is good beginning for a great work of making Janesville what it should be—the best place in the state in which to live.

What's all this talk about selling arms to the Mexicans? From the newspaper dispatches concerning the retreats of the armies, what Mexico

The Orphan Child of the State.

The normal schools are treated like Little Orphant Annie, in Wisconsin. Books are needed, desks are wanted to supply the students, more and better facilities are demanded. There is no money. The state needs the normal schools. They are the great intermediate educational institution between the high school, the district school and the university—and by university is meant the largest of all institutions, the whole world. We need what the normal school produces—teachers.
They get the best normal training in the country at our state schools. They learn to have confidence in themselves. But the state legislature feeds them on crusts and makes them eat at the second table. Now we have the emergency board trying to figure out a way to take care of what the legislature neglected. It is a miserable system. There ought to be no emergency board except for an emergency. Truly a state institution neglected by the legislature is not an "emergency." The situation demands a special session to do what, in cowardice, was left undone at the regular session. We elect a legislature to make appropriations, not to make reputations. A member of the legislature expanding his chest over his economy program is no pretty figure now when it is perfectly plain that he left the normal school cupboard bare. Why does the governor hesitate about calling a special session? The emergency board, which we believe is entirely contrary to law and the constitutional design, ought not to have the power to spend money as it pleases. That is a legislative function pure and simple, direct and determined.

Efforts of Hiriam Johnson to resurrect the Built were sunk in it during storms in 1923. Evidently it is warlike.

There are a lot of people who think 1924 is going to be worse than 1923. If it will help them any, we hope so.

Translating Music Into Colors

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Can you imagine Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" if, instead of hearing the melody, you might see it expressed in a series of colors, with one color fading into the next, just as notes blend?

Or, can you imagine the color scheme of a famous painting translated into a brilliant cord of music?

For years there have been artists and musicians who felt sure that color and sound are related. They believed that in some way a given note in the musical scale could be expressed by a given color.

Early experiments assigned the colors of the spectrum—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, and violet—to an octave on the piano keyboard. Intermediate colors, such as red-orange and orange-yellow were inserted to fill out the chromatic scale. This system, with some variations, has been the basis for almost all color music. Organs have been rigged up, so that when certain buttons were pressed corresponding colored lights would be thrown on a screen. By following a score, the color organist could give a visual concert. Sometimes the lights have been shown with musical accompaniment, in which case the colors were supposed to convey through the eye the same impression as the musical notes conveyed through the ear. Variety was achieved by softening the notes with gray, or by fading them out to produce pianissimo effects.

The possibilities of the most successful color organs were limited in that the range of colors was entirely covered in one octave, whereas a piano score might conceivably range over seven octaves from deep bass to high treble. The attitude of some scientists was—and still is—that there is no relationship at all between the vibrations of ethereal waves which produce light, and the vibrations of air waves which produce sound.

Into this situation Mrs. Maud M. Miles has introduced a new color music scale, or rather an entire keyboard which she recently patented. She first fitted the six colors of the spectrum and the intermediate colors in order into a complete piano octave, beginning with red at C, and adding red-violet, which is missing from the spectrum, and which is needed to make a connecting link between red and violet.

This was only one octave and it was in the brilliant hues of the spectrum. Such violent and elementary colors are rarely seen in nature, and are not so harmonious as softer shades and tints. Puzzling over this, she recalled that each color in the spectrum can be fitted into its exact place in a scale of values between white and black. Yellow, for instance, if robbed of its color quality, would be a pale gray which artists call "high light." If yellow-orange lost its color quality, it would be "light" in value, and so on down the list of spectrum colors.

With this in mind, she tried making an octave in which each color note was bleached out to the paleness of pure yellow. This pale-tinted octave obviously belonged high in the treble. Another octave was made with each color reduced to the dark key of pure violet. In this case, yellow and orange and all the colors lighter than violet had to be darkened with gray, and the result was an octave that seemed to suggest heavy bass. Between these extremes the keyboard was completed by a series of five more octaves.

To test the practical application of this invention, Mrs. Miles spent some time translating music into colors. According to her theory any harmonious chord of music should be turned into a harmonious color combination on the new keyboard. This was found to be the case.

The relationship between color and sound was carried further. Much of the classic pastoral music is written in the key of F. On the color keyboard, yellow-green is the keynote corresponding to the key of F, and yellow-green, of all colors, is the color of nature in spring. Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," translated to this color scale, has a keynote of blue-violet. Pure yellow, the color of daffodils, is prominent, and all the color notes are the pale tints suggestive of spring flowers.

Reversing the process, the inventor of the scale next studied a collection of fine old paintings. The harmonious color schemes of these paintings was unquestioned. But would the colors make as agreeable a musical chord on the piano? Out of 28 Madonnas, 24 were found to be painted in a color scheme of red, yellow, and blue-green. According to the musical parallel, these colors would equal the chord, do, mi, sol, in the key of C. This is one of the simplest and most fundamental chords in music.

Mrs. Miles says: "I believe that if a number of people were left alone to find three musical notes that harmonize, the majority would first find the tonic chord of the key of C. The early Assyrians, ignorant of the laws of vibration, had a pipe that played C, E, and G."

An interesting incident shows how the theory works when applied to discord. Mrs. Miles was teaching art in a high school, and using the color keyboard to help students in selecting color schemes. One day the class was asked to make posters to advertise the school lunch room. The lunch room, unfortunately, had just had an "off day" when the soup was decidedly not worth advertising—or so thought one youthful artist.

At any rate, he came to the teacher's studio that evening, and brought with him an outlined poster of a girl carrying a lunch tray. Her shoe was tying off, the tray was tipping, and a bowl of soup was spilling to the floor.

"You said we could get colors to correspond with musical chords," he announced. "I want to get a chord on the piano to sound the way that soup tasted at lunch time."

For an hour, while the teacher worked in a corner of the studio, the boy writhed the most terrible combinations of sounds from the piano. Finally, with his face awry, he said, "Now that's exactly the way it tasted! Let's see how it looks."

The chord was transposed to the color keyboard and it turned out to be so nauseating a color combination that no one could look at it for more than a few minutes.

The inventor of this newest color-music theory says there are several uses to which such a scale can be put. Rendition of a musical composition can be accompanied by the display of color equivalents. It is not necessary to show every color note in such cases, it is pointed out. Just as the violinist may play only single notes which carry a melody, so the color score may be limited to a small part of the musical score.

And most any of the buyers will argue that the Volstead law and the 18th amendment are failures.

Rossiter Johnson, famous essayist and publicist, says he cannot understand why men seek the presidency. He objects to them running about the country asking votes and fighting in a scramble for delegations. Mr. Johnson evidently does not understand that if the scramble were stopped, both Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Hiriam Johnson, who are chasing around looking for votes, would both be out of business.

Anyhow the Oregon army seems to be supplied with very necessary military weapons, the American typewriter.

Mr. Mead missed the storm by a day. Considering the fact that he wrote this prediction on the hottest day in August makes it a pretty good prophecy.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST.

A NEW YEAR'S PLEA
Lord, let me stand to the thick of the fight.
Let me bear what I must without whining;
Grant me the wisdom to do what is right.
Though a thousand false pretenses are shining,

Let me true as the steel of a blade.
Make me bigger than skillful or clever;
Teach me to cling to my best, unafraid,
And harken to false gospels, never.

Let me be brave when the burden is great,
Faithful when wounded by sorrow;
Teach me, when troubled, with patience to wait
The better and brighter tomorrow.

Spare me from hatred and envy and shame,
Open my eyes to life's beauty;
Let not the glitter of fortune or fame
Destroy the fair splendor of duty.

Let me be true to myself to the end,
Let me stand to my task without whining;
Let me be right as a man, not a friend,
Though a thousand false pretenses are shining.

WHO'S WHO TODAY

DR. ERNST CHUARD.

Switzerland has called a college professor to guide her destiny. At her annual presidential election, she has chosen Dr. Ernest Chuard as chief of the nation for 1924. Dr. Chuard was vice president last year.

One of the important principles instilled by Chuard into the mind of the modern chiropractor is surgical asepsis. That doesn't mean the use of antiseptic chemicals which look or smell impressive or come in fancy costumes. It means the tchabit of absolute cleanliness, bacteriological cleanliness, bacteriological cleanliness, keeping germs out of the environment. Not only is he interested with the public, but with the child and orthopedic medical students after they've been introduced.

"Drag her up on her feet!" directed Pap. "We'll show this young lady who's boss around here. We'll teach her."

The grunt was wrong from the depths of his being by one of the young lady's heels which had kicked him in the pit of the stomach.

Pap gave ground temporarily.

"You're a fine pair!" jeered Slim.

"It's good thing for you two. I'm here or I'd be starting you both into the fire and burning you up."

"What's the matter, Hank? Feelin' sick, huh? Pap, you took kind of green."

"Sh—e—kicked—me—in—the—stomach," Pap explained jerkily. "Be—all-right—in—a—minute."

"Lemme go!" panted Dolly. "Lemme go!"

"Well, you promise to marry Shae?" asked Sam, twisting her arm a little. "You'd better, twisting your own."

You only hurt yourself, twisting and jerking thisaway. If you kick me again, I'll twist your arm off!"

She did kick him again, and he did twist her arm too. It was the fourth time down her checklist, and she really believed that she would faint with the pain. Yet no cry escaped her.

Her brain was curiously active. What would they do to her? Why didn't Hank change his shirt once in a while? Hadn't worn the one he had on twice now. She had never wished Slim had changed that morning. She could feel his stubby chin on the back of her neck. What queer eyes Pap had! They seemed to smolder as they glared at her. There was a button missing from his shirt. She had hung over his ears more than it should. He looked as if it had never been combed before. But it hadn't. Not in the last few days, anyway. What a beast he was! Yet he had seemed kindly enough when he took her to live with him. You never could tell. No, you certainly couldn't. What were they going to do to her? If Slim twisted her arm a sixteenth of an inch more, she'd scream. She knew that. Or faint. Probably the latter. Her stomach felt queer, and strings of black spots danced before her eyes. Hank was getting up. He was rubbing his head and swearing at her.

"All ready?" said Pap. "Yonder's the rope, hanging on that nail."

Did they intend to hang her? Was that it? No, that wasn't it. But it was something only a degree milder.

At one end of the blacksmith shop stood the rear axle of a freight wagon, complete with its two heavy wheels, and at that was left of a wagon that had been broken in half.

The three men dragged themselves to one of the wheels, spread eagle, her facing the wheel and made fast her wrists and ankles with the rope.

"You still refusing to marry Shae?" inquired Pap.

"I won't marry him!" she declared in a strangled voice.

Pap snatched no comment. He took hold of her flannel shirt at the neckline and flipped it down to her waist. Her chemise and underwear treated in the same manner.

The white skin of her face seemed to gather unto itself all the light in the room. The girl's eyes, her body, and mind, all muscles—uselessly. Her shining red hair, rumpled every which way and half down, suddenly fell its length and covered her back and one side.

"Stuff her hair down between her and the wheel," ordered Pap. "I want the leather to get a full bite."

Lester and Miller held. What?

She snatched her head off, averred Slim, as he urgently obeyed Pap's command. "She ought to be gagged."

"Good idea," said Pap. "Tear off her shirt and use that."

"Going to whang her full stretch at the go-off?" asked Hank, busy with the proper adjustment of Dolby's shirt.

"Suro," was the careless reply. "I want to get this business over with as soon as possible."

From a nail on the wall Pap took down one-team mule whip, which, be it known, is shorter than the two-and-a-half-team whips, but quite long enough to fulfill the purpose. That had in mind. The man took his stand behind and to the left of Dolby.

The girl, squirming her head around to the left, saw what he held in his right hand. She saw him draw back his right arm and swing it forward. The whip sang through the air. She closed her eyes and jumped.

Why Stay Fat?

You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is, "It's too hard to trouble about it too much." Prescription: Take exercise all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, entail no danger, exercise and have the added advantage of reducing the weight without a dollar by half during the world over, or send the price direct to the Marine Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Now, how do you know this? You have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce steadily and easily without going through long stages of tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.

THIS WOMAN RELIEVED FROM SUFFERING

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A Remarkable Story

Dover, Del.—"I wish every woman would take your wonderful medicine as it has done so much good to me. I have cramps and faint spells and very bad pains. One day I went to my neighbor's house and she told me I ought to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So I went to the store on my way home and got a bottle, and took the first dose before supper. I have been taking it ever since, and you can hardly believe how different I feel. I had just wanted to lie in bed all the time, and when I started to brush up I would give out in about ten minutes. So now I can work all day and stay up until eleven, and feel all right all the time. My housework is all I do in summer, but in winter I work in a factory. I have sold a good many of my friends, and I have had three come to me and tell me they wouldn't do without the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. SAMUEL MURPHY, 219 Cecil St., Dover, Delaware.

A FILM VERSION OF
THE FAMOUS POEM
PRODUCED BY WHEELAN

He stumbled across the barroom floor and leaned up against the lunch
herring and pretzels and Switzer cheese. Mighosh,
but that man could munch

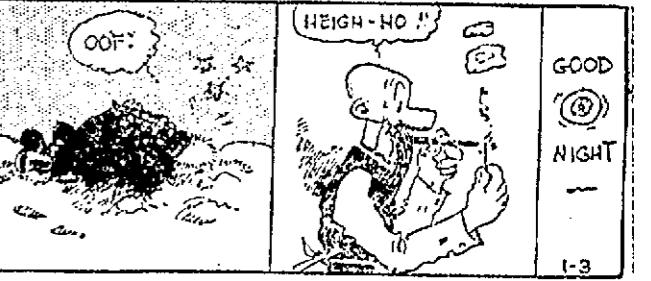

Then I got to figgering
what he'd do to a platter of Irish stew and I turned around and there, watching him, was the bartender known as Lew.

Then I ducked my head as the cafe shook and
two men hit the floor.
A nightfowl hooted while one was booted clean out thru the open door.

Flat on his nose in the

Chileno—In the absence of any special in price ruling during the first part of the board of trade session, an advance in wheat quotations at Liverpool had no effect here, but resulted in a weakening of the market rates to Europe with net heavy receipts continuing small, however, and severe cold weather prevailing in the northern winter crop belt, was reflected in wheat quotations, which varied from the same as yesterday's finish to 14¢ lower, May $1.075¢; 6/1, July $1.062¢, were followed by slight declines all around.

The market later rallied somewhat, it was said a little domestic demand had been taken off the market, and that return of buying of Canadian wheat yesterday had been under-estimated. The close was unsettled at 14¢ net decline to 14¢, July $1.062¢.

Corn and oats were relatively firm, the fact that receipts were light had the chief sustaining influence. No important change in buying was expected to result from the Belvoir explosion. After opening unchanged to 14¢ higher, May 75¢; 6/1, earthen held near to 14¢, but slightly advanced.

The crop movement is very small for this season of the year, and advances from the country show that little is being sold by farmers there. Corn, 14¢, May 75¢; 6/1, higher, May 55¢; 75¢; 6/1.

Oats started unchanged to 14¢ off, May 44¢; 6/1, 43¢, and later gained a trifling more.

BY FRANK SINCLAIR

THOUGH WISCONSIN and Iowa led the big ten basketball championship last year, the Badgers were rated as the strongest of the conference, according to Dr. L. J. Cooke of the University of Minnesota. Writing in Spalding's official basketball guide for 1923-1924, Dr. Cooke declares that the Cardinals "deservedly" won the title of the "champions," although they failed to carry them to victory and in Willis and Tebell had the best pair of guards in the conference," both of whom were awarded places on the all-conference team by the majority of pickers. Dr. Cooke continues: "In the latter part of the season Wisconsin developed an offensive which was almost unstopable, and in the opinion of the experts they finished the strongest team in the conference."

COMMENTS in the rule book on basketball are unusually interesting this year. William H. Ball, member of the John D. Rockwood committee pointing out that the game was invented for the physical and recreative benefit of the player and was not intended as one arranged for spectators nor as a means to exhibit skill. He says: "It is primarily a form of muscular exercise of the recreative type, whether in the way it greatly appeals to modern life. It is to be used to supplement, but not supplant, other very necessary forms of physical activity. It is not an end in itself, but is a means of helping develop the finest type of manhood the world has yet seen."

FURTHERMORE, he says: "While the game allows plenty of scope for individual initiative and ability, the strongest feature is the constant demand for team co-operation, both on the offensive and defensive play. This is one of the valuable products of the game, for it is of inestimable value that each player, in his own turn, through practical experience, the cumulative advantages of working in close harmony with others in seeking to reach desirable objectives. This is equally true in the home, as well as in business, in the affairs of the state, and among the nations of the world. In the interests of the race co-operation is the chief value. The greatest values of basketball are found in the realm of character training. From the very beginning it has been a sportman's game, conceived and perpetuated in the ideals of clean sport."

CALL IS ISSUED FOR ENTRIES IN DOUBLES, SINGLES

THOUGH WISCONSIN and Iowa led the big ten basketball championship last year, the Badgers were rated as the strongest of the conference, according to Dr. L. J. Cooke of the University of Minnesota. Writing in Spalding's official basketball guide for 1923-1924, Dr. Cooke declares that the Cardinals "deservedly" won the title of the "champions," although they failed to carry them to victory and in Willis and Tebell had the best pair of guards in the conference," both of whom were awarded places on the all-conference team by the majority of pickers. Dr. Cooke continues: "In the latter part of the season Wisconsin developed an offensive which was almost unstopable, and in the opinion of the experts they finished the strongest team in the conference."

COMMENTS in the rule book on basketball are unusually interesting this year. William H. Ball, member of the John D. Rockwood committee pointing out that the game was invented for the physical and recreative benefit of the player and was not intended as one arranged for spectators nor as a means to exhibit skill. He says: "It is primarily a form of muscular exercise of the recreative type, whether in the way it greatly appeals to modern life. It is to be used to supplement, but not supplant, other very necessary forms of physical activity. It is not an end in itself, but is a means of helping develop the finest type of manhood the world has yet seen."

FURTHERMORE, he says: "While the game allows plenty of scope for individual initiative and ability, the strongest feature is the constant demand for team co-operation, both on the offensive and defensive play. This is one of the valuable products of the game, for it is of inestimable value that each player, in his own turn, through practical experience, the cumulative advantages of working in close harmony with others in seeking to reach desirable objectives. This is equally true in the home, as well as in business, in the affairs of the state, and among the nations of the world. In the interests of the race co-operation is the chief value. The greatest values of basketball are found in the realm of character training. From the very beginning it has been a sportman's game, conceived and perpetuated in the ideals of clean sport."

In giving out the initial section of the meet schedule, Richards issued an urgent call for bowlers to get in the ball square, and stated: "Our show is in those departments very poor," he said.

The other squads appear in the schedule, workers are still out to bring in a cleanup of the promised entries for Janesville in the big classic, no announcement will be ready until possibly Friday as to progress, said Charles Toulon, president of the Janesville Bowling Association, Thursday.

The new schedule will be open to the first day of the meet, Saturday morning, the balance of the schedule being filled with up-to-date teams.

CITY Hall to Open.

The meet will open at 8 p. m. on Friday, Jan. 18. A squad of 12 counts from the city hall will start the greatest pin meet in the history of Wisconsin and the most successful of its kind.

SIX STAR WHITEWATER GRIDDERS WILL BE MISSED IN 1924 SEASON

Whitewater—When the roll is called for the 1924 football season at Whitewater normal, the six men pictured above will not answer "present." About that time, Coach Agnew is going to discover that six big gaps in his eleven have to be filled and that the process is more than a problem. The gaps were the backbone of the 1922 championship squad and the 1923 runup of the normal conference of Wisconsin. Capt. Dyer and Hostad were placed on the mythical all-normal squad, and Ingalls was all-conference center at Beloit in 1921.

Warren, of Portage, was a hard-working player—realistic in his approach, but a much too garrulous "coach." He is a low-driving, hard-hitting buck. On defensive work he backs up the line or moves out to the wings in a most commendable manner. Warren is playing an excellent game at an age when most high school and college men are content to leave the pads in mothballs. He is eligible for our more years, but graduation takes him out of competition.
